Truman's Address at Chicago Highlights Nation's Army Day

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 6 — President Truman visited Chicago for the first time as Chief Executive today, arriving by special train shortly after 9 a. m. to review a huge Army Day parade and outline the nation's future role in world affairs.

The sun broke through cloudy skies in 43-degree weather as Mr. Truman, accompanied by Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret, was greeted at Union station by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Gov. Dwight H. Green. The nation's highest military officers accompanied the presidential party.

Upon leaving the station the President, seated in the tonneau of an open car swarming with secret service agents, drove through the loop to the Blackstone hotel through crowds estimated at 100,000 by Capt. C. P. Cregan, chief of the city's police traffic division.

Interviewed by "Cubs"

The President granted an unusual news conference at the hotel, his questioners being high school and college journalists of the Chicago area.

The great parade, displaying American military might, was scheduled for 11 a. m. with Mr. Truman reviewing it from a stand along Michigan avenue at the Congress street plaza.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of Staff; Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Forces commander; Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Ground Forces commander, and Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes, Service Forces commander, and Secretary of War Patterson accompanied Mr. Truman.

More than 2,000 persons jammed the Union station when the train arrived. The station swarmed with secret servicemen, military policemen and city policemen who kept all those who did not have the right color passes at a distance from the presidential party.

Plea for Power Seen

Mr. Truman was reported to have decided that the United States must maintain a powerful peacetime force to back up its insistence upon protection of weaker nations.

The President's views were understood to be set forth in an address he was to deliver at Chicago's huge Soldier Field at 4 p. m. today. Showers were forecast during the morning, clearing and warmer in the afternoon with a high of 65 above.

Chicago planned a gala reception for the plain-spoken Missourian who attracted scant attention there during two brief visits in 1944 as a candidate on Franklin D. Roosevelt's winning ticket.

The President, associates said, has put the finishing touches on an address which may rival his October 27 speech at New York's

OPA WINS YEAR MORE BUT WITH CUTS IN POWER

Agency Faces Bigger Test in House Debate; Price Rises Are Forecast.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 6—The OPA bounced today from the congressional frying pan into the fire.

The bill prolonging the price agency's life for a year beyond June 30 headed toward red hot debate on the house floor after the banking committee voted far-reaching revisions and curtailment of its powers.

An OPA spokesman said the committee action, if sustained by the house and senate, would hike retail prices on automobiles, refrigerators, radios and many other items, with consumer costs increasing by more than half a billion dollars this year.

Nevertheless, congressional friends of OPA said the drubbing the agency got in the committee was not as bad as they feared.

Rep. Monroney (D-Okla), a banking committee member, commented:

"The bill brought out by the committee is not all that I wanted, but it is better than I expected in view of tremendous pressure brought by opponents of OPA. It would result in some price increases, but I do not believe it is a break-through."

The committee brushed aside the pleas for an early end of OPA made by the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce and some other business groups, and followed President Truman's recommendation that the agency be continued for a full year beyond June 30.

List of Changes

But it wrote into the OPA extension bill yesterday these far-reaching revisions:

1. A requirement that OPA restore the retail profit margins it has trimmed for a large number of reconversion items—autos, refrigerators, radios, etc. This revises the OPA cost absorption policy which has required retail outlets to bear a portion of the increased cost of production by reduction of markup or discount margins.

2. A directive that price controls be liquidated in various lines as supply comes into balance with demand, with the gradual decontrol responsibility assigned directly to President Truman rather than to OPA.

3. A provision for early termination of the government's $2,000,000,000 annual subsidies program, including payments to reduce consumer food costs. This amendment would slash subsidy payments in the next fiscal year by 25 per cent, or $500,000,000, and require the government to get out of the subsidy business by June 30, 1947.

4. A repeater for OPA's maximum average price policy by which the agency forces manufacturers to produce low cost clothing.

Sees Big Boost

An OPA official estimated that the revision of the cost absorption program, if finally made law, would boost automobile costs to consumers in the next 12 months by $300,000. OPA has cut the retailer discount on automobiles to 19.5 per cent. If the amendment remains in the bill the agency would be required to restore the discount to the prewar 24 per cent level.

The revised bill made no changes in current OPA rent ceiling regulations.

Geisha Girl's Story Uncovers $2,000,000,000 in Tokyo Bay

Tip Leads Allies to Two Truckloads of Precious Metals Sunk in Bottom Mud by Japs.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, April 6—A geisha girl's tip led today to discovery of two truckloads of precious metals ingots believed worth 30,000,000,000 yen ($2,000,000,000) in the mud of Tokyo bay.

An informant said he had been told by Japanese army officers the money was to be used "in building up a greater Japan after things have quieted down."

The ingots were located by Lt. E. V. Nielsen, Stamford, Conn., an officer in the 32nd Military Government Co.

The original tip came, Nielsen said, from a geisha girl. She told a Japanese employed by a civilian interpreter for the military government that a large sum of gold had been dumped into Tokyo bay.

Nielsen said developments indicated her story was a planted tip.

Investigation showed the girl's story came from a small social club composed of elderly Japanese small shopkeepers and businessmen.

Feared Militarists

"Finally," Nielsen said, "one of the group told me that 'because the militarists had been the ruination of Japan we didn't want them to get hold of the huge supply of precious metals.' He said he trusted the Americans and for that reason would tell the whereabouts of a laborer who worked in dumping ingots into the bay."

The laborer designated a dock at a former Japanese maritime school on the Tokyo waterfront now used as a boat slip by U. S. First Cavalry personnel.

Nielsen brought up the first ingot weighing 75 pounds. It tentatively was identified by Bank of Japan officers as platinum.

"I stripped and went down into about six feet of water and there in three or four feet of mud I could feel two areas, each about 20 by 20 feet square, which seemed to be paved with these blocks," Nielsen said.

Laborer Tells Story

The spokesman for the social group told the American officer that the laborer had come to members of the group in fear of death and was being hidden by them. It was upon assurance by Nielsen that the laborer would be protected that he was produced and told this story:

"Sometime in the latter part of July 1945, with other laborers I was ordered to meet a group of officers near the maritime school. We were told by the officers that we were to help unload some trucks. These trucks were driven onto the dock where covers were taken off. We were informed the trucks were loaded with steel ingots that were being disposed of.

"While we were lifting the heavy ingots off of the truck and dump-

STRIKE TOTAL NEARS 800,000

Coal Shortage Cuts Industry; Hope Seen in Harvester, Westinghouse Walkouts.

By The Associated Press

The ranks of the idle because of labor disputes moved toward the 800,000 mark today as current work stoppages forced thousands of workers to leave their jobs and new strikes threatened.

On the credit side of the labor strife was the hope held for the ending of two long strikes involving more than 100,000 workers in plants of the Westinghouse Electric Co. and the International Harvester Co. About 787,000 remained idle throughout the country because of labor disputes.

Coal Shortage Spreads

The six-day-old work stoppage by 400,000 AFL soft coal miners brought curtailed business in the steel mills and railroads and at least 12,000 workers in those two industries were made idle. They included 8,000 in U. S. Steel Corp. subsidiaries and more than 4,000 on coal-carrying railroads.

In Detroit, where a transportation strike continued for the sixth day, approximately 51,000 auto plant workers in the Motor City area were idle because of work stoppages and parts and materials shortages.

Other workers made idle because of materials or parts shortages included 18,500 at Ford Motor Co., 8,000 at Hudson Motor Car Co., while 7,500 Packard production employes have been idle since Jan. 24 due to curtailed supplies of bearings.

As the transit strike in Akron, O., also entered its sixth day, 400 AFL street car men's union in Scranton, Pa., voted to strike Monday, after first setting the walkout for 2 a. m. today. The union is seeking wage increases from the present 82 cents to $1.25 for bus and trolley operators and 25 per cent pay hikes for other employes.

Harvester About Set

The 76-day-old strike by 30,000 CIO farm equipment workers at Harvester plants was expected to be settled "momentarily," said principals holding conferences in Washington.

A settlement of the 81-day-old strike at Westinghouse plants involving 76,000 employes did not appear near, but new hope was raised of an end of the walkout as company and CIO electrical union officials said they had conferred on a basis for resuming di-

NOVEL DRAFT PLAN GIVEN TO CONGRESS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 6—The house military committee flabbergasted the army today with this painless formula for continuing the draft—extend the law nine months but ban induction of anyone becoming eligible during that period.

This novel proposal, which quickly attracted formidable support, was advanced as the nation stood by to hear President Truman's Army Day address which is expected to carry a renewed appeal for straightaway extension of selective service another year.

The no-induction measure was offered by Rep. Harness (R-Ind) yesterday as a substitute for an army-backed bill calling for continuing the draft under existing conditions for a year beyond its May 15 expiration date, but with service liability limited to 18 months.

Left with "Sitter," Five Children Die

By The Associated Press

STERLING, Mass., April 6 — Five children, left in care of a young neighbor, perished early today when fire swept their two-story frame dwelling.

They were identified by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Woodring, as Winifred, 10; Patricia and Priscilla, 8, twins; Francis Michael, 6, and Carol Ann, 5.

Four of the bodies were recovered shortly after the fierce blaze was extinguished, but they were charred beyond recognition. The fifth body was found several hours later.

A 15-year-old girl, Nancy Cutler, who state police said was minding the children while their parents attended a basketball game in nearby Worcester, suffered burns on the arms and hands.

BUCYRUS FOREMEN BLOCKED BY PICKETS

Strikers Say Employes of Plant Loaded Freight Car.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, April 6—Gates of the Swan Rubber Co. remained closed to all except office workers today as the three-day old strike continued with little hope of an early settlement.

About a dozen pickets continued on duty today. Foremen, who were admitted through the picket line Thursday were denied entrance Friday because the pickets maintained the men had loaded a railroad car which was the work of men on strike. The management claimed the car loading was a clear-up of unfinished work.

M. G. Nussbaum, company president, issued a formal statement claiming the company had been given no advance formal notice the strike was to occur. The strike began Wednesday at 11 p. m. when pickets surrounded company buildings and prevented the night shift from going to work. Members of the United Rubber Workers (CIO) voted to strike Sunday, Feb. 17, but postponed it while negotiations were going on with company officials.

Neither the union nor the management has issued any statement concerning its stand in the dispute in which union members are asking for a wage increase.

Between 400 and 500 employes including men and women are affected.

GUNMAN FREES GIRL HOSTAGE

Pretty Ohioan Safe at Home After Wild Auto Ride with Robber-Kidnaper.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 6—Patricia Smith, pretty, 21-year-old red-head kidnaped last night by a gunman who robbed her father's store, happily rejoined her parents today after being released by her abductor seven miles from the scene of the robbery, police reported.

The auburn-haired girl told police she was led from her father's store at gun-point, pushed into the gunman's automobile and forced to accompany him on a wild ride toward neighboring East Liverpool.

Blindfolded by the robber, Patricia was ejected from the automobile when it reached the Lincoln highway, south of Youngstown, she told police. The girl called her father, Irvan Smith, from a nearby farm house and was brought to the home of her parents in a police car, Police Chief Don B. Thomas reported.

Girl Not Hurt

Chief Thomas said the girl was uninjured, though somewhat shaken by her kidnaping which lasted about two hours.

Miss Smith told police the bandit merely used her "as a shield" to facilitate his escape with $130 in loot taken from her father's pockets and a cash register in the Smith drug store.

She described her abductor as wearing a brown suit and about 30 years old, and said that she did not recognize him.

Ohio highway patrolmen and city police patrols in the East Liverpool area were alerted in the continuing search for the robber-kidnaper today as police attempted to trace the path of the gunman's auto from the place where the girl was released, Chief Thomas said.

Smith, father of the abducted girl, earlier told police he was compelled to lie on the floor of his establishment as the gunman seized the loot and left with the proprietor's daughter, menacing the girl with a revolver.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith prepared a joyful homecoming for their daughter after she returned from her two-hour abduction.

Stops for Chat

The bandit drove to the intersection of Routes 7 and 30 just north of East Liverpool. He told Miss Smith he had a date with a woman there. They waited there two hours during which the bandit told the girl about himself. He said he was from a good family, had a college education. But refused to answer any of Miss Smith's questions.

He said he didn't need the money. In fact, he said he would return it to the Smith home within a week.

The bandit then said he had to make a phone call, directed the girl to get out of the car and drove away. Miss Smith ran to a nearby farmhouse and called Youngstown police.

POWERS SPLIT OVER HOW TO HANDLE SPAIN

Reds Likely To Back Poles; British Do Not Regard Case as Emergency.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 6—The task of determining whether the present Spanish regime is a threat to international peace—and what to do about it—headed today toward an uncertain reception in the United Nations security council.

The Polish embassy in London announced Poland's delegate had been instructed to raise the Spanish question and to propose that the United Nations sever diplomatic relations with Generalissimo Franco's government.

The announcement found the council in week-end recess—after disposing of the ticklish Iranian issue until May 6—and preparing to fashion rules on procedure when members return to Hunter college Tuesday.

Delegates Are Split

A check of those delegations remaining in New York, however, showed them divided over the question of delving into the Spanish question immediately.

Dr. Oscar Lange, the Polish delegate, was in Washington. It was not learned whether he had been instructed to raise the question at Tuesday's session.

In British circles, where it was made clear Franco has no sympathy, the Spanish question was not regarded as an emergency such as the Iranian dispute.

Henri Bonnet, the French delegate, said "It's a move which certainly won't surprise anybody in France."

The French originally entertained the idea of council action on Spain, but had decided to let the council of foreign ministers consider it first.

Soviets Stand Clear

Official Russian reaction was not available but the Soviet's stern attitude toward Franco was no secret. It was considered likely that Poland's decision to bring the matter before the council would be supported by Andrej Gromyko, the Soviet delegate.

(In Madrid the Franco government, commenting upon the fact Romania has broken diplomatic relations with Spain, said relations between the two countries had been suspended "since occupation of Romania by Soviet armies.")

Diplomatic authorities said the security council probably will insist on a full report from both Russia and Iran on the agreements made to settle their dispute.

The report, based on yesterday's Tehran announcement that the two governments had agreed on troop, oil and political problems, would give the council opportunity to review the Russo-Iranian arrangements and decide whether it considered them satisfactory.

That there may be some criticism was indicated by a declaration from a member of the Australian delegation, who could not be otherwise identified, who accused Iran of having used the security council to advance her own "political negotiations" with Russia.

Dislikes Setup

He said that the Iranians had protested all along they could not

NAVY TO COMPLETE SEPARATION SEPT. 1

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 6 — The Navy announced today its plans for winding up demobilization by Sept. 1.

The plan covers all personnel except those signing for extended service, completing special assignments, under medical treatment, in disciplinary status, officers awaiting transfer to the regular Navy, medical officers with unexpired internships and personnel of V-5 and V-8 programs or in the aviation preparatory program.

The first quota to go to the separations centers will be made up of 20 per cent of eligible reserves on board as of July 1, this quota arriving at the centers between July 1 and 14. HATED TO BE BRUTAL, KEITEL TELLS COURT

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, April 6—Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, former chief of the German high command, listed for the international military tribunal today the "three worst things I had to do against my conscience" in serving Adolf Hitler.

He testified that there were:

1. Ordering warfare in the Soviet Union which violated civilized rules.

2. Sanctioning the Gestapo execution of 50 escaped British RAF prisoners of war in 1944 and the lynch law against "terror" fliers.

3. Issuing a decree for the liquidation of patriots in occupied western countries.

These decisions, which he attributed to Hitler but admitted signing, were "most against my education as a German officer and my inner voice," Keitel said.

British Prosecutor Sir David Maxwell Fyfe traced Keitel's alleged complicity in fostering Gestapo terror from 1942 through 1944.

An operation whereby Gestapo agents spirited suspected resistance leaders from their native countries to death in Germany was admitted by Keitel to be "extremely cruel and brutal." Families of those to be executed were not informed, he said.

Gen. R. A. Rudenko, Soviet prosecutor, asserted that a month before the war with Russia Keitel signed a directive "for the shooting and murdering of Soviet political commissars."

"It did not contain the word murder," Keitel said.

"It speaks for itself," Rudenko replied.

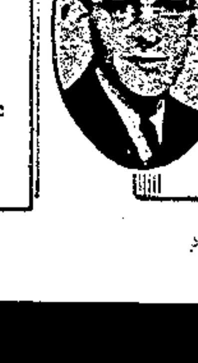

"I was a loyal, faithful, obedient general of the fuehrer and I do not think there are any generals in Soviet Russia who would not obey Marshal Stalin," Keitel declared.

Congress To Control Atom

Sets Up Joint Committee To Act as Brake on Atomic Energy Commission.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 6—Congress reached out today to plant a finger permanently on the control button of any domestic machinery governing future atomic energy developments.

A special senate committee was disclosed to have written into the legislation it has been preparing for months a provision for establishing a 14-man joint senate-house group authorized to make a continuing study of atomic controls and to sponsor legislation affecting them.

Members who declined to be quoted by name said they expected this bi-partisan committee of seven senators and seven house members to serve as one of the brakes on the unprecedentedly wide powers bestowed on a civilian atomic energy commission under terms of the bill.

How It Is Now

As the measure is now drawn—subject to final action by the special senate atomic energy committee next week—the commission could do just about anything it feels necessary to advance atomic developments.

It would produce and own all fissionable materials and radioactive byproducts. It could distribute them in this country, with or without charge, for research and medical therapy. Under the supervision of congress and the President, it would license the industrial use of atomic energy.

The commission would direct research and development on military phases and, when the President approved, could produce atomic bombs and other similar weapons. The President would direct when and in what quantities it would deliver atomic weapons to the armed forces.

To Control Plants

The commission's ownership would extend beyond fissionable materials and atomic weapons to all of the plants and facilities for processing and producing fissionable materials. It would own all patents and inventions and previously-constructed property, like the Manhattan district installations where the bomb was produced.

"Willful" violation of its security regulations would be punishable by fines ranging from $5,000 to a maximum of $20,000 and 20 years in jail.

But senate committee members pointed out that the commission would have to make semi-annual reports to congress and go there for money to continue its activities.

TRUMAN BACKS VOTE FOR 18-YEAR OLDS

By The Associated Press

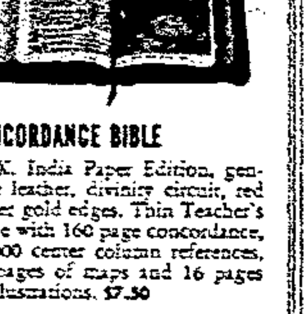

CHICAGO, April 6 — President Truman advocated the ballot for 18-year-olds today in an unprecedented teen age news conference which highlighted his Army Day welcome here.

The man from Missouri submitted to a 20-minute barrage from the high school journalists which he said was tougher than any he had undergone from the questioners in Washington.

He told them he didn't see why any intelligent boy or girl of 18 should not have the right to vote if they prepare themselves since they proved in time of war that they can shoulder citizenship's highest duty.

Cincinnatians Face Utility Strike As Union Rejects Bid

CINCINNATI, April 6 — Apprehension over a threatened strike of 1,400 employes of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. grew today as U. S. conciliation commissioners continued conferences in Washington between officials of the company and the AFL electric workers in an effort to avert the walkout which would disrupt this metropolitan area's power, light and transit services.

Union day shift employes of the company last night voted, 432 to 17, to reject the company's latest offer of a 15 cents an hour wage increase and to strike to enforce union demands for a pay raise of 20 cents an hour, Leroy Vinson, business agent of the company local reported.

He said night shift employes would cast ballots today and if the total tabulation showed the same sentiment, executive officers of the union would set the time for the walkout "within a few days, less than a week."

There was no interruption of service last midnight, the expiration of a 30-day NLRB "cooling-off" period. James Knight, international representative of the union, said the union's original demand was for a 25-cent increase, later lowered to 20 cents.

The Washington conference opened yesterday afternoon and continued until late last night before recessing until 9:30 a. m. today.

J. Harry Moore, Ohio industrial relations director, said he believed a settlement was possible, perhaps on the basis of the 15-cents pay increase granted in three other Ohio utility disputes. Moore represents Gov. Frank J. Lausche at the conference.

Roosevelt Tax-Exempt Status as Soldier Hit

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., April 6.—The New York tax department ruled today that executors for the late President Roosevelt's estate should file a 1945 state personal income tax return because "there is considerable doubt" as to the Chief Executive's military exemption.

Attorneys for the Roosevelt estate had asked for a ruling on whether the late President was exempt from the tax on the grounds that he was a member of the armed forces at the time of his death April 12, 1945.

The request on Feb. 5 had noted that Roosevelt was commander-in-chief of the United States forces and had asked whether this made him a soldier within the meaning of the tax law.

Programs on the Air

Woody Herman figures someone should do something to top the current spread of radio "giveaways." So he's decided to put up his band.

Naturally he'll do it in the form of another contest, with listeners writing in one of those "25 words or less" pieces. The winner will get Herman and the band as well as a purse.

But there's a catch. The band will be the winner's only for one night, free of charge. However, it is agreed that the group will play anywhere, even a street corner, the winner desires after June 21.

Herman broadcasts Friday nights at 8 on ABC.

WALL STEET MAKES SELECTIVE ADVANCE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 6—Mail orders, buoyed by reports of continued record sales, led a selective advance in today's stock market although many leaders were indifferent.

Dealings picked up at intervals after the opening but slowdowns were frequent. Steels, rails, motors and utilities failed to get anywhere in particular. A few oils and "blue chips" did fairly well. Gains of fractions to 2 or more points were well distributed near the close but the losing side was well populated. Transfers for the two hours ran to around 700,000 shares.

Dividends, earnings, inflation psychology and the belief big industrial production is in the program for some time to come served to prop individual favorites.

Spurring the merchandisers was the Sears Roebuck statement showing March income of $128,600,901, largest for this month in the company's history and 38.3 per cent above the like 1945 period.

ing them into the water, one of my companions scratched the heavy paint which covered the bars and discovered it was gold.

"He started to tell some others about it and was overheard by one of the officers. The officer called us all together and told us we would lose our lives if we ever mentioned what we were doing."

Nielsen said the laborer informed him it took some time to dump the thousands of bars and that during the operation he overheard the officers talking about the gold, silver and platinum. He heard them estimate the value at 30 billion yen.

Tells Social Group

The laborer finally told the social group about it. The geisha girl in turn learned of the metals from the group members and thought they were the ones hiding it.

"However," Nielsen said, "it seems the social group members merely were debating to whom to take the information and readily talked when I talked to them."

Capt. William Swope Sr. of the engineer outfit working on the diving operation, said he had felt the cache on the bay bottom and it was the "damndest thing I ever saw."

Swope estimated it would take several days and modern equipment to recover all of the ingots.

Bradley Gives Indians "Green Light" on Jump to Mexico; Stephens Repents

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 6—President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians gave the "green light" today to any members of the Tribe who want to play in the Mexican league — but believes rambling Romanos should "check up on the income tax situation first."

Bradley's statement followed publication of a story by the Cleveland Plain Dealer yesterday stating that "at least a dozen" Indians' players had been approached by the peso-promising Pasquel brothers, and that "several Tribesmen are considering jumping" south of the border.

"If we have any boys that want to go to Mexico, they ought to go," Bradley asserted. "If they are dissatisfied with us they should go—and stop talking. My only advice is that they check up on the income tax situation and be certain they get their money—in dollars."

The Tribe camp was "in an uproar" over the published reports as the Indians broke spring training camp and left for a northern trip with the New York Giants, said the Plain Dealer, "but the facts remained unchanged."

"While most of the established regulars brushed off the Mexican story with flat denials or [illegible] comment, it was known that some of the lower-salaried Redskins had taken the stand that $5,000 should be the minimum wage for major league performers — and that anyone receiving less than this amount would be foolish if he didn't give serious consideration to the bids from Mexico," the Plain Dealer dispatch said.

"The Mexicans are trying to sign several members of the Wigwam and some of the latter are more than casually interested," the story asserted.

"Bullet Bob" Feller has refused flatly an offer from Don Jorge and his brothers, said the Plain Dealer, which quoted an anonymous Tribesman as saying:

"This is what we have needed. It's no secret that we have discussed in clubhouses many times the possibility of organizing a union. Put it in your paper, as strongly as you wish, the fact that we are pulling for the Mexican league to make good."

The story mentioned no names of the Indians' members allegedly approached with contract bids by Mexican representatives.

Browns Welcome Back Home Run King

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, April 6—Shortstop Vernon Stephens, 1945 American league homerun king, rejoined the St. Louis Browns today after a short-lived bolt to the Mexican league and was welcomed home without penalty by club and league officials and Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

The star infielder who made his debut in Mexico with a game-winning hit for Vera Cruz only last Sunday, showed up unexpectedly during the Browns' exhibition stopover in San Antonio, Tex., yesterday and quickly affixed his signature to a one-year contract.

Chandler declared that "Stephens will be in the Browns lineup on opening day" and reminded other major leaguers who signed with Mexican loop clubs to return before the season's opening—otherwise they face a five-year suspension.

American League President William Harridge said Stephens returned with full approval of the league and would not be penalized since he had not signed a previous contract with the Browns. Terms of his new contract were not disclosed.

A permanent holdout all spring, Stephens had demanded $17,500 from the Browns, whereas most estimates of club offers were around $12,500.

When Jorge Pasquel, president of the Mexican circuit, announced last week-end that he had signed Stephens, he asserted he was paying the star shortstop "at least as much as the $17,500 he had sought from the Browns."

Stephens had worked out regularly near the Browns training camp at Anaheim, Calif., and appeared in good shape during frequent visits to camp to discuss a contract. He accompanied the club to Houston, Tex., where the Browns engaged the Cubs in an exhibition game today.

Walker and Herman Face Unemployment in Dodger Camp; Trade Rumors Heard.

By The Associated Press

MOBILE, Ala., April 6—It appeared almost a certainty today Dixie Walker and Billy Herman will not be in the starting lineup when the Brooklyn Dodgers open the 1946 season. Herman probably won't be physically fit to play because of a sacroiliac ailment, and Walker, in addition to suffering from tonsilitis, appears to have lost his regular right-field berth to Rookie Gene Hermanski. There are persistent rumors that Walker and Herman may be traded.

OLD SOL HELPS YANKS SHOW MID-SEASON FORM

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

To hear some of the old timers the New York Yankees have the greatest baseball team ever. Certainly Old Sol has done a good job on them—the players, that is.

There isn't a team which can boast of having more or better hitters in shape for the 154-game grind. The men of McCarthy are slugging in mid-season form.

Of course Florida claims the sun rays are responsible for the great condition of the "Bronze" Bombers.

Others argue that the three weeks spent in Panama was the greatest investment President Larry MacPhail ever made. The daily ball of fire down yonder cooked the Yankees to the perfect degree of excellence.

"I don't know whether it was the sun in Panama or St. Petersburg which helped me most," explains the yelling-harder-than-prewar Joe DiMaggio, "but I don't think I ever felt better, or have seen our team in such good condition for this time of the year."

Right here, Grantland Rice joined the conversation and started praising Phil Rizzuto and Joe Gordon to the skies.

"I've never seen a better keystone combination in my life!" exclaimed Granny. And, brothers, that is some confession since the dean of baseball writers has been aroused since Hector was a pup.

Rizzuto and Gordon are really terrific—so far. Whether their great play lasts until October is another question, as Dom DiMaggio of the Red Sox points out:

"Most of the servicemen will get off to a great start this season because of the longer conditioning program we have had. But whether we can stand the gaff until October is another question. Quite a few legs and arms may give out in July and August."

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees isn't saying very much but he looks happier than ever. Probably the Marse's biggest worry will be his pitching staff. As one fellow put it: "What have the Yanks got after Spud Chandler put a period?"

Well, bear this in mind: McCarthy believes in power teams—plays for a lot of runs. He never worries when the other fellow gets a marker as long as he's got boys coming up who can get it back. He's got plenty of those fellows on his side this year—and they're going to pound home loads of runs.

The last two seasons, the Yankees had to play for one counter like everyone else. This year they're going to aim for eight, nine or ten a game—and they'll get them, too.

Walker Likely To Lose Place As Dodger "People's Cherce"

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Writer

NEW YORK—If coming events forecast their shadows there's going to be an election in Brooklyn. And Dodger baseball fans "go to the polls" only once each year. That's when they pick the "People's Cherce."

For the past three seasons Dixie Walker has been their man. Now with baseball's first peacetime season since 1941 come two of the most popular youngsters Ebbets Field rooters have ever seen—Pete Reiser and Peewee Reese.

Pete Reiser

Reiser and Reese were the darlings of Dodger diehards when the Brooks took the 1941 pennant, their first since 1920. They could do no wrong.

Reiser led the National league in four departments but his crowning achievement was his .343 batting mark which won him the league title in his first full season.

Reese batted only .229 that year. Yet he won the admiration of the fans with his daring play around shortstop.

Manager Leo Durocher doesn't know whether Reiser will be back in center field or at third base. But Reiser will be in there somewhere, of that you can be sure.

Peewee Reese

As for Walker. Well, it's the same old story. The handwriting is on the wall, rightfield wall that is. The Dodger brain trust is making Walker fight for his job once and this time they seem to have come up with a fair country ballplayer in Gene Hermanski, just back from the Coast Guard. Hermanski hit .300 playing 18 games on a "look-see" basis in 1943.

Brooklyn will have a few other favorites back from the service fellows who earned their spurs in the good old prewar days. Among them are Hugh Casey, Billy Herman, Cookie Lavagetto, Kirby Higbe and Ed Head.

As a team, the Dodgers shape up nearly as well as the Cardinals and Cubs. The Brooks have the speed, pitching and hitting. Much depends on the interest the players show in the race to become the "People's Cherce." The fans might even declare a voting moratorium by not picking any one player.

Then again, you never can tell what a Dodger fan has on his mind.

VANDY AND BEGGS WIN DOUBLE BILL FOR REDS

Pitching Spells Difference in 4-2 and 2-1 Tilts.

By The Associated Press

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 6—Johnny Vander Meer and Joe Beggs were the fair-haired boys in the National leaguers' entourage as Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox squared off for another doubleheader here today.

Airtight pitching gave the Reds a double kill, 4-2 and 2-1, in Selma, Ala., yesterday, as southpaw Vandy scattered seven hits in the nine-inning opener and Beggs checked the Bosox sluggers with only five safeties in the nightcap, limited to seven frames by agreement.

The Reds tagged Mickey Harris and Otis Clark for nine blows in the first game and got to Joe Dobson for six well-placed hits in the finale.

Today's probable pitchers were announced as Nate Andrews and Clyde Shoun for the Reds and Tex Hughson and Larry Powell for Boston.

GOLDEN GLOVES KING HEADS FOR BOSTON

Delaware's Charles Moore To Fight in U. S. Finals.

Charles Moore of Delaware, colored lightweight who won the Marion district Golden Gloves championship and the state championship at Columbus, will entrain tomorrow for Boston where he will compete in the national AAU tournament Monday and Tuesday.

John Wilson, director of the Delaware Community Athletic club and Moore's manager, said his fighter was in good shape and confident although somewhat nervous. An arm injury which hampered him during the district and state bouts has nearly healed and should give little trouble, Wilson said.

Moore will meet lightweight champions from other states although the names of the 16-year-old Delaware boy's opponents will not be known until weigh-in time at Boston Monday. Wilson said he thought Moore would probably have to fight at least three bouts to win a national championship.

Benny Dallas of Columbus will second Moore at Boston since Wilson, who was in Moore's corner at Marion and Columbus, will be unable to attend the Boston bouts. Moore's expenses are being paid by the state AAU organization.

Slams at Wartime Game Annoy Nat Hurler

Knuckle-baller Leonard Says He's Sick of Hearing How Tough '46 Will Be.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Emil (Dutch) Leonard has been flipping his good right arm for the Washington Senators since 1938, always aware that he has to win to keep his job.

Probably that is why the big fellow is burning up over the statements that "Baseball was pretty bad during the war years but will be much better this season."

DUTCH LEONARD
Senators' Knuckle Ball Ace

Sick of Hearing It

"I'm sick of hearing how much better the game is going to be," shouts Leonard. "I don't see how we can have any greater race in the American league than we had in 1944 and '45. Both pennants were clinched on the last day."

Detroit won the 1945 flag in the last minutes of the last game. The Browns won on the last day of 1944 by virtue of Leonard's masterful hurling against the Tigers, who were tied for the lead.

"I'll never forget that Sunday in 1944 as long as I live," says Dutch.

On that day Leonard got a mysterious phone call. He was offered several thousands dollars to lose the game.

"Just imagine how I felt," says Dutch. "Gosh, many a time I've pitched my heart out yet lost the game. Suppose the same thing had happened that day? Talk about having a prayer on a pitch. I had two on every ball I threw. It was the most important game of my life.

Kept Out of Ditches

"I just can't begin to tell you how much baseball means to me—not only because of the wonderful experiences I've had in it but also because it kept me out of blue work shirts and overalls.

"You see, if it hadn't been for my right arm, I would have been a laborer, and probably a ditch digger. My father, who was a miner, talked me out of following him. I was working the shovel for a gas company in Chicago when I got started on the mound."

Leonard began in organized ball in 1930 but it wasn't until 1936 that he got control of his famed knuckler. Dutch won 17 games last year and lost seven.

Asked how many knuckles he throws a game, Leonard answered:

"Sometimes I don't throw more than eight or nine. Other times I throw two or three to every batter. When I think they're looking for the knuckler, I cross them up with a diet of fast balls.

"We should have a great club this year. Ossie Bluege finally has got some hitters. And our pitching should be better than last year."

Cast Stars Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy, Sonny Tufts and Barbara Britton.

The Virginian" starring Joel McCrea, Brian Donlevy, Sonny Tufts and Barbara Britton is playing through Sunday at the Palace theater.

An exciting Western story, "The Virginian" is set in the wondrous western state of Wyoming and tells of the people who conquered that land and the ways in which they did it. Joel McCrea plays the title role of a man very intent on creating a civilization in the wild western country. Sonny Tufts becomes engaged in cattle rustling and doesn't understand what it is all about until it is too late. Barbara Britton is Molly, a New England girl, who wants some excitement, and Brian Donlevy is seen as Trampas, a law-breaker.

Short Features

Short features shown with "The Virginian" are "Lonesome Lenny," "Rhythm on Blades," and the News of the Day.

Monday only the Marion Community Concert Association program will be presented on the stage. It is the "Foxhole Ballet."

A double feature, "Tokyo Rose" starring Byron Barr and Osa Massen, and "Vacation from Marriage" with Robert Donat and Deborah Kerr, will be shown Tuesday through Thursday.

"Tokyo Rose" traces the infamous career of this American born woman who turned traitor to her native country. It tells how a band of courageous American soldiers, who are prisoners in a Japanese prison camp, join forces with the underground to track down the secret hideout of Tokyo Rose. The latter, which is the story of the postwar adjustment of a young married couple who find their personalities and their former attractions for each other altered after service in the British forces, stars Robert Donat as the husband who entered the British Navy, and Deborah Kerr as the wife, who joined the Women's Royal Naval Service.

Double Feature

Friday and Saturday a double feature will also be shown. The pictures will be "Wildfire" starring Bob Steele, and "A Boy, a Girl, and a Dog" starring Jerry Hunter, Sharyn Moffett, and the dog, Lucky.

The story of "Wildfire" is of a great brown stallion, king of the wild horses. It tells how, in gratitude to two men who saved him from death, he risks his own life and his freedom to save them from harm at the hands of outlaws.

The latter picture tells of two youngsters who live in a hotel where animals are definitely not allowed. They run into trouble with the management when they adopt a stray pooch which they think is an ideal pet.

"The Stork Club" starring Betty Hutton, Barry Fitzgerald and Don DeFore, and "The Notorious Lone Wolf" with Gerald Mohr and Janis Carter will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Marion theater.

The former tells of the amazing things which happen to a girl after she rescues a millionaire from drowning. The plot of the latter picture is concerned with the disappearance of a rare jewel.

"Diamond Horseshoe" starring Betty Grable and Dick Haymes, and "And Then There Were None" with Barry Fitzgerald, Walter Huston and Louis Hayward will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

A musical in technicolor, the former tells the story of a father's ambition for his son to become a doctor, the son's revolt, and of the tangle which is finally solved. The latter is another in the series of the Durango Kid pictures in which he breaks up a gang of land-grabbers.

YOUR HEALTH

Emotional Conflict

Few parents realize how all-important happiness is for the little child. Just as his growing body needs sunlight and fresh air, so his developing personality requires the atmosphere of love.

But love means different things to people, and parents generally seem to have a tendency to confuse it with pride. This is a mistake which is completely disruptive of child-happiness because it spurs parents to demand more than the child than he can give.

A child cannot be forced into his various stages of growth. His nature must develop slowly from within and unfold gently like the unfolding leaf.

The child who lacks or who is pushed beyond his native capacities is likely to develop emotional conflicts. And emotional disturbances are reflected not only in deep-rooted personality defects, but in actual physical symptoms similar to those of disease.

Sometimes there are grave behavior problems as well . . . bed-wetting, dirt eating, tics (repeated twitching of certain muscles), and a great deal of crying at night.

According to Dr. Herbert C. Miller, of Yale University School of Medicine, repeated attacks of headache in the absence of eye-strain, sinus infection, migraine and certain other disorders, are usually produced by conflict of the emotions or disturbing situations for which the child cannot find a ready solution.

He says, also, that attacks of pain over the heart lasting for a short time and accompanied by breathlessness may occur in children who have been pushed beyond their abilities by their parents. Sometimes, they may develop because a child has been forced to assume responsibilities too great for one of his years. Another cause is a feeling of insecurity because of disturbed home conditions or a feeling of not being loved.

Perhaps the most common symptom due to emotional conflicts is pain in the abdomen. Such attacks of pain, even when accompanied by vomiting and constipation, may merely be an attempt on the part of the child to draw attention to himself.

In trying to determine just what is producing the emotional conflict responsible for the many symptoms, it is necessary not only to study the child's mental condition but also emotions of the parents.

Parents so often make the mistake of not trying to find out just what the child's capabilities are, but instead, try to mold the boy or girl according to some pattern which they select and, usually, there is no stimulation given to the child to live up to these ideals of the parents. Such an attitude will bring on an emotional conflict which affects both child and parents.

In treating these behavior problems, it is important, first of all, to make sure there is no organic basis for the attacks as determined by a complete physical examination. Then, the parents must be made to realize that the child's symptoms are not due to a disease but, rather, to emotional disturbances. Thus, by the proper change in attitude on the part of the parents, a great deal can often be done to relieve the trouble.

Much can be done, also, to prevent these symptoms. The expectant mother should rid herself of superstitions and false notions concerning the raising of the child. She must not be afraid to handle the baby after it is born and she must not lose confidence in her ability to nurse him and care for him properly. A lack of confidence in the mother may easily be transferred to the baby.

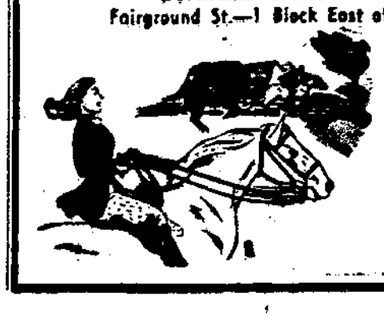

If every parent would take stock of these things and realize that he must rid himself of his own emotional conflicts, fears and uncertainties lest they weigh on his child with crushing force, we would have better homes and fewer problem children.

Atomic Power Hasn't Changed Army's Plans Greatly To Date

By CLARKE BEACH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, April 6—Today is Army day. All hail the Army for its feats in the past war and all its wars.

Even on its own day, however, it is impossible in this newly born atomic age to separate the Army's future from that of its sister services.

The atomic bomb, which may some day pierce the stratosphere between continents has bound them together.

Both have presented a fairly complete outline of their plans for the future and profess to be fully aware of the radical change which the fissioned atom brought into the technique of warfare.

Not Much Change

But as yet atomic energy in itself does not yet seem to have caused any real changes in their plans.

Universal military service, sponsored by the Army and Navy, has been something of a national issue since the time of George Washington. Now the military leaders say the need for highly trained manpower ready for instant action has been made an urgent necessity.

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson has stated that universal military training would be a much more economical method of maintaining a strong diplomatic hand than a large standing Army.

Church and labor organizations and many prominent citizens, however, have opposed the plan. They declare that it would reflect on the sincerity of our peace efforts and indoctrinate youth in military principles they regard as totalitarian.

And in the last analysis it would not contribute to our military security, they say, for it would only produce a mass army, which they contend the atomic bomb has rendered obsolete.

Navy Has a Word

Unification of the armed services has been talked of by the Army for some years, and the Army men claim that it is now a paramount necessity. The proposition is strongly opposed by Navy men, who feel that the Navy would be a very junior partner. They seem to be unimpressed with the Army's atomic twist to the argument.

Among the short-term projects of the services is extension of the Selective Service act beyond May 15, the date of expiration.

Alternative plans have been proposed in congress, where there has been much fear of unfavorable reaction among voters to a continuance of the draft. One bill would increase the size of the Marine Corps to make it large enough to carry on all occupation duties, and raise the pay of enlisted men to attract volunteers.

The war department now plans for a peacetime army of 1,070,000 men by July 1, 1947. This would include 400,000 men in the Air Forces.

The Navy department proposes to have 500,000 volunteer enlisted men by September 1, 1946, 58,000 officers, 100,000 volunteer enlisted Marines, and 10,000 Marine officers. (The Navy is going along with the draft ideal, although it counts on volunteers for itself.)

"Saratoga Trunk" starring Ingrid Bergman and Gary Cooper is now playing through Saturday, April 13, at the Ohio theater.

This picture, taken from a best-seller novel written by Edna Ferber, concerns a couple of wrong-side-of-the-tracks characters who have a great number of difficulties after they meet and fall in love. The girl is Clio Dulaine, beautiful daughter of the mistress of a prominent New Orleans banker. The man is Clint Maroon, a gangling Texas cowboy.

Both are out to even a score with the society people who they felt had mistreated their parents. Clio wants her mother's name cleared and honored in New Orleans, and Clint wants to make a railroad pay for a land swindle which impoverished and killed his father. The two meet in the French market in New Orleans shortly after Clio returned there from Paris.

A mystery drama, "Experiment Perilous" starring Hedy Lamarr, George Brent and Paul Lukas, will be shown for five days starting Sunday, April 14.

In this adventure thriller, Hedy Lamarr plays a beautiful young wife of a wealthy philanthropist who calls in a new York doctor, played by George Brent, to investigate the death of her sister-in-law. Her husband consults the doctor with regard to the sanity of his wife, and George Brent as the doctor sees that there is danger ahead.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

DICKY'S eyes were shining with love and pride as he looked at his small daughter. And, indeed, I acknowledged, and acquitted myself of prejudice, she was a vision to delight the eyes of any father.

Katherine had done a wonderful job, and how in the world she had accomplished it, I could not imagine. The miniature uniform of a trained nurse was authentic in cut and texture, and the little white cap looked as if it had been made for the child. The white shoes and stockings, I saw, were Faith's own. Katharine, of course, had had the opportunity to take them from the luggage while the child's grandmother was asleep.

Faith's bright hair was demurely hidden beneath the cap, but enough of it framed her lovely, winsome face to complete a picture which I wanted to preserve for our future remembering.

But first of all, I knew we must register the "amazement, admiration and applause" which Katharine had mandated for Faith's first appearance, and as I began to clap my hands together, Dicky joined in, while Faith's face and eyes glowed with pleasure at the effect she was creating.

I knew that this heady exhibition of ego might have to be paid for in future discipline, but firmly banished the thought as I remembered the reason for the masquerade.

"What a 'surprise, surprise' this is, Darling!" Dicky said, as his small daughter began to edge toward him, evidently forgetting her grand manner in the desire to get close to him.

Echoed Amazement

"However did you manage it?" I queried, echoing his "amazement," and getting ready for the "admiration" which Katharine had requested.

"Oh," Faith stopped, and pirouetted instead of walking. "Aunt Katharine just asked me if I'd like to be a nurse in uniform and help her take care of Granzie. Of course I said 'Sure thing,' and she fixed me up the uniform right away. Don't you think she did a good job?"

Dicky and Jack, with evident difficulty, suppressed audible chuckles at her nonchalance, while I reflected, as I guessed Katharine was doing, that the child would not know for many years just how "good a job" Katharine had done.

But I did not voice my thought. Instead I joined in Dicky's praise of the uniform and its wearer, but made my encomiums moderate in order to tone down his exuberant enthusiasm. I did not want my small daughter to be completely spoiled by this adventure, I told myself.

Had Reached His Side

"You're the sweetest, loveliest little nurse in the world!" Dicky concluded. She finally had reached his side, and was standing with his arms around her. "Now, tell Daddy what you have to do as a nurse;"

She wriggled from his arms and stood erect.

"First," she said, evidently putting the most spectacular duty first, "whenever the doctor comes into the room, I have to get up if I'm sitting down and stand at attention."

Her eyes went to Jack's face and rested there.

"Uncle Jack's going to be the doctor," she said.

"You lucky dog!" Dicky said. "You always cut yourself a piece of melon!"

Faith stopped preening herself, and giggled.

"How can a dog cut a melon?" she queried, and giggled again.

Will Hold You

"I guess that will hold you, honored sir, for a spell," Jack said, and Dicky smiled engagingly at his small daughter.

"I'll tell you all about that," he promised, "after we get back from that luncheon."

Then he looked at me dourly.

"I don't suppose there's any chance of our being able to stay at home?" he asked.

"I'm afraid not," I said, with an equally doleful note in my voice. "We simply must go."

"It's going to be terribly stuffy and tiresome," Dicky complained, and Faith looked at him condolingly.

"Gee, I'm glad I'm not a grown-up!" she said. "Then I'd probably have to go to the old luncheon, and Aunt Katharine would have to get some other nurse to help her."

NEW ROOT DISEASE HITS STRAWBERRY PLANTS

County Agent Reports No Cases Known Here.

County Agricultural Agent Arthur H. Smith has received information from the state department of agriculture concerning discovery of a new root disease among strawberries, reported to be doing considerable damage to the Ohio crop.

Mr. Smith said he knew of no cases of the disease in the county. There are only a few commercial strawberry producers in Marion county, although many persons raise strawberries for their own use.

The disease, known as red stele root disease, destroys especially the younger lateral roots and later the larger roots and causes drouth and starvation of the plant, Mr. Smith reports. After red stele fungus is once established in a field of strawberries there is no known means of cure. Infested fields should be plowed and some other crop planted, and tractors, and implements used in the infected patch should not be used in the new planting without some means of sterilization, according to the county agent.

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

Careful Decorating Adds to Home Comforts.

The manner in which a house is furnished and decorated will decide in a great measure exactly how much enjoyment the occupants get out of it. A home can be well built, well heated, and economical to maintain, but it will not be altogether comfortable if it is decorated and furnished in a haphazard fashion. Fortunately it is as easy to decorate in good taste as in bad taste. The only requirement is that you select a certain type of decoration and carry it out.

There are two very definite styles that are in general favor. One is a contrasting scheme which calls for striking effects in color and for excellent taste in odd pieces of furniture and in floor coverings. If you adopt this scheme, you must study your house room by room, and be careful that your contrasts are not glaring and theatrical instead of striking and good-looking. You must refer to illustrations, particularly in color, which are available to every one, and match the best in your own home according to your own ability to pay for them.

One-Color Plan

The second scheme is that of one color. Some of the very best examples of good decorating are found where one color, in various shades, has been carried out through living room, dining room halls and bedrooms. It is not necessarily monotonous if it is done with thought. It has the advantage of adding a feeling of space to the interior of the house, no matter how small it may actually be, and there is little chance of any one making a very bad error in their color schemes.

There are a few basic rules covering interior decorating which are well known to the profession and which are used to create certain effects. They can be applied with good effect by the amateur decorator. If you want to make a ceiling appear higher, you stress the vertical lines of the room. In other words you see that the wallpaper design has lines that run from floor to ceiling, and when you arrange pictures you must see that they are one above the other instead of being one alongside of the other.

On the other hand, when you want to create an effect of spaciousness in a small room, you see that lines are horizontal, and you stress the lines that are running along with the floor and ceiling. In other words you stretch out the limits of the room by inference. As a good example you might lay out two squares, each two inches square. In one, draw lines a quarter-inch apart vertically, in the other draw lines a quarter-inch apart horizontally. Keep them about six or eight inches apart, and [illegible] that the [illegible] is quite a bit higher than the horizontal-lined square. This optical illusion idea is followed out in decorating.

All decorating is expensive and is not an item on which to waste your money. There are many homes in the country where the owner has seen fit to live with bare undecorated walls for months before he made up his mind about his decorating scheme. We are in favor of the idea. Live with your room for awhile, do not hurry. Search and study look over [illegible] decorating scheme and ideas that you can find, and decide on one that fits your home and carry it out to completion. Use whatever pieces of furniture you have, always remembering that refinishing is not too expensive when you can sandpaper and paint yourself. Discard nothing until you are assured that it will not fit into your adopted scheme of decorating.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

ENAMEL CHIPS

Q. Our home is three years old and the woodwork is finished in white enamel. I have been waxing all of the woodwork twice yearly because I thought it would look well and hold up much longer. Now my chair rails and cupboards (the doors mostly) are chipping considerably. Was all of my waxing in vain? What can you suggest?

A. Either the woodwork was improperly painted—that is, the first coat was not properly trimmed—or the paint used was hard and brittle. In the first instance the paint would not adhere properly to the wood and when struck with a hard object chipping would occur. The same will happen when the paint film is hard and brittle. The remedy is to remove the old finish and refinish with a good grade of enamel, following directions as given by the manufacturer. Waxing will not cause enamel to chip.

STICKY PAINT

Q. I painted my kitchen chairs an ivory color. But the paint has not dried and the surfaces are a bit sticky. How can I harden the paint?

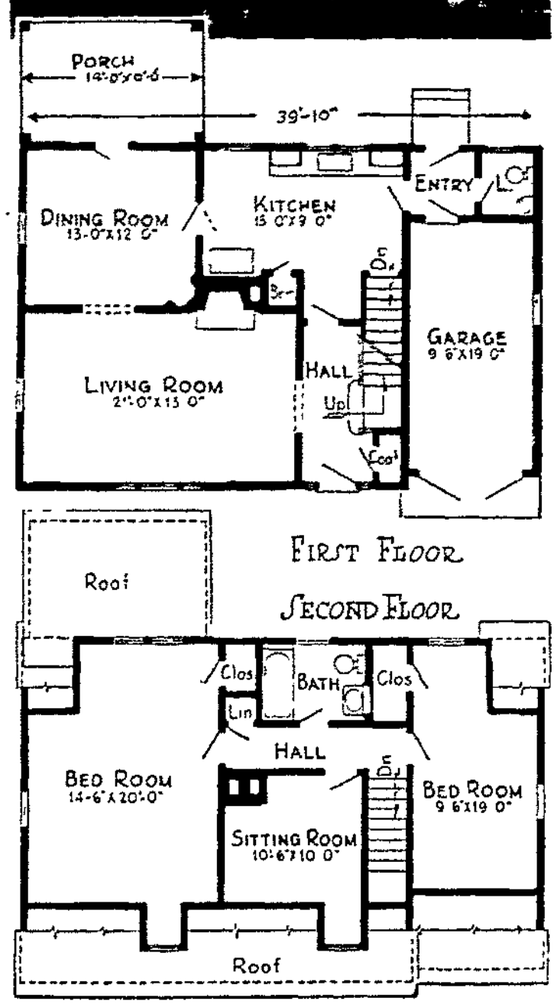

A. If you painted over waxed or greasy surfaces there is no way to harden the paint. It should be removed. Poor quality paint might be hardened by sponging the surfaces with turpentine, and sometimes very cold water will do the trick.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

By The Associated Press

Typical of the popular Colonial style suburban home is this dwelling designed by Architect Willard Wilkins of High Farms, West Hartford, Conn. Its overall dimensions, 38 feet, 10 inches by 28 feet, 4 inches, exclusive of rear porch, make it especially suitable for a small lot, points out the American Builder magazine, to which inquiries for any further information may be addressed at 105 West Adams St., Chicago, 3, Ill.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q. I want to thank you very much for your kind favors and submit if I may some further questions.

1. Can snapdragon seedlings be developed from seed sown in flats in November or December, and left in the open garden through winter?

2. Will length of bloom stems cut from hybrid tea roses have any effect on root development?

3. Is it desirable to carry snapdragons over through the first winter, and if so how can they best be protected, and about when should such protection be applied in Baltimore area?

4. When only commercial dried cow manure is available, what is the maximum proportion by volume safe to use in soil in which roses are planted?

5. What is the proper depth to cover "union" of budded roses with soil and what will be the results if covered four or five inches above soil level?

6. About when should nitrogen treatment of roses begin in spring, and about when discontinued (Baltimore area), and what further treatment should be given after this, other than hilling soil about plants for winter protection?—H. L. B., Baltimore 16, Md.

A. Snapdragon seed sown out-of-doors in the late fall so that it does not have a chance to germinate should come up perfectly satisfactorily this spring. Or, if you have sown it in late August or early September, the seedlings would normally live over winter.

Newly planted hybrid tea roses and other large flowered roses should have practically no foliage cut off the first season when cutting flowers. After that, if the roses are growing satisfactorily, it will not seriously injure them to take off a sufficient amount of foliage with each flower so that it may be used as a cut flower. There is usually ample foliage on the plant to carry on the manufacture of food unless you fail to spray or dust regularly so that black spot and mildew defoliate the plant.

Although snapdragons will occasionally live over winter and in a relatively mild climate such as yours, do it fairly regularly, they are not reliable for bloom the following spring. If you attempt to do this I would suggest that they be mulched with straw, hay excelsior, or oak leaves for the winter so that a certain amount of air might get to the plant.

If I could only get commercial dried cow manure, I believe I would rather buy peat moss and a complete commercial fertilizer to get a little more for my money. If you have purchased the dried cow manure you can use it at the rate of three to five pounds for 100 square feet of soil surface.

In planting budded roses the budded part or shoot should just be at or beneath the surface of the soil. If you plant it deeper your roots will be too deep for proper aeration and growth and you may have more difficulty in separating suckers from the desirable growth. If you put it too far above the surface it may be subject to sunscald and nothing but the bud stock left.

Dusting or spraying of roses should start as soon as your leaves are fully developed. May I suggest that you look into a new dust called "All Purpose Garden Dust" put out by DuPont company? This contains fermate which, we believe, is the best material yet for control of black spot on roses.

Q. Will you kindly write me what kind of shrub or plant I can use for a screen? I wish to build an out-door furnace and we have close neighbors. We would like something that would grow fast and make a close screen. Our vegetable garden is in back of lot and we have close neighbors on either side.—G. D., Marion, Ind., O.

A. There are a number of shrubs that you will find very satisfactory for a compact screen for your out-door picnic spot. I would particularly recommend the Ibota privet, the wayfaring tree (Viburnum lantana), the nannyberry (Viburnum lentago), the Amur maple, the Cornelian cherry, (Cornus mas), and the Winter honeysuckle, (Lonicera fragrantissima).

For a little shade for your picnic ground, I would suggest that you use a small tree such as redbud, English maple, Russian olive or Washington thorn.

Our bulletin "Beautifying the Home Grounds" will give you additional suggestions for developing this spot.

GUARD AGAINST FIRE

Everybody loves an open fire but you'll love it no more if it is the cause of your house burning down. It can easily happen to you unless your fireplace is construction of solid masonry or reinforced concrete. And the hearth should be made of noncombustible material supported on a fireproof slab or brick arch that extends well out in front and at each side of the fireplace.

MARCH FIRE REPORT

The city fire department made 43 runs during March, according to a report released by Fire Chief Owen A. Smith. Of these four were false alarms, one caused when someone tried to mail a letter in an alarm box. Total estimated damage caused by March fires is $1,422.

Betty Burge, soloist of "The Song of Norway," New York production, and Rosa Rolland of the Metropolitan Opera Co. Ballet; with Victoria Crandall and Morelana Kortkamp, duo concert pianists.

Variety in Program

Programs for the American tour, of which the Marion concert is a part, are of great variety and virtuosity, including solos, duets and ensemble numbers. Overseas, they ranged all the way from such numbers as Johann Strauss' "Let's Dance," a Czech "Harvest Night," to music of Dvorak, and a lively "Circus" done to Gay Nineties tunes, both to be done here, to Gershwin's "Man I Love," "Reverie" danced to Kern's "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," and "Chinese Ribbon Dance," also to be done here.

Features of the Foxhole Ballet repertoire are the following works:

"Century Bouquet" ballet by Lieut. Joel C. Kimball, choreography, Aubrey Hitchins, music, Brahms, costumes and scene, Kermit Love. The action takes place in a New England drawing room in 1845.

"A Czech Village," choreography Boris Romanoff to music of Dvorak, and costumes designed by M. Doubouinsky and executed by Karinska. The ballet is based in the fact that in Czechoslovakia it was the custom at the close of the day for the villagers to participate in their national games and dances.

"Divertissements," including "Grand Pas de Deux" from "Swan Lake" music, Tschaikowsky and Mouradoff. "Anastasia" choreography, Helene Vecola, music, Lecuona, danced by Rolland, Bustles" choreography, Richardson, music Massenet, costume Kermit Love, danced by Richardson, "9 A. M. — Dance Studio Workout," choreography, Mouradoff, music, Tschaikowsky, danced by Burge, "Chinese Ribbon Dance, choreography, Mouradoff music, Crandall, costume after design by Florence Martin executed by Karinska, danced by Mouradoff, "Kuyawiak Polish Dance," traditional folk dance music, Wieniawski, danced by Woicikowska.

A part of the program presented by the two pianists will be "Scaramouche Suite" by Milhaud.

The final number will be "Circus" choreography, Grant Mouradoff, to music of Charles Magnan, costumes after designs by Florence Martin executed by Mulle and properties, Remo Bufano. The characters in the ballet include a bareback rider, tightrope walker, fortune teller, animal tamer, and clown.

Desertion by Talented Sons Facing Greece

By HAL BOYLE
AP Newsfeature Writer

ATHENS, April 5—War-bowed Greece faces one of the greatest unseen disasters that can befall any nation—the flight of her talented sons to happier lands.

Many of her ablest and most ambitious young men soberly are asking themselves whether they should remain in this age-weary little country that has become a Balkan fulcrum between Russia and Britain or emigrate to newer nations where they believe their abilities will have freer play.

Hal Boyle

They want fresh intellectual frontiers. They want to leave behind them the old cynicisms, old blood feuds and outworn antagonisms still thriving after centuries of checkerboard military moves.

Particularly many are impatient of Greece's preoccupation with political problems at a time when she still is bleeding from unstaunched war wounds. Some doubt whether it is worthwhile to invest their youth and brains in a tormented small country which, for geographical reasons they feel never can be more than a football between major powers seeking control of the Mediterranean.

Last of a Series

Could Cripple Nation

"If 1,200 trained men in different fields emigrated they would cripple Greece for a generation," one young specialist told me.

"I myself have had offers to go to other countries where I feel I and my family would fare better. And I am afraid I will have to take one of them."

He and other young men like him think that food, clothing and shelter—problems of raising the Greek standard of living—are more significant than any political question.

In their impatience they perhaps fail to see that Greece cannot rebuild without first achieving some measure of political stability.

Middle aged and middle class Greeks realize this. They deplore the incessant political activity within Greece but feel that at this time it is unavoidable. They fear the war-born swing to Communism among the minority of this country's poorly fed, poorly clothed and poorly housed urban masses.

Fear Red Influence

Above all the upper and middleclass Greeks fear a further penetration by Soviet Russia which as the result of wartime military advances has managed to embrace all of the Balkan countries in her peacetime political orbit.

We know Russia is willing to extend her protection to us. I said one small businessman. But we don't want that kind of protection."

But some Greeks do. And the issue won't be solved until Greece sets up a balanced stable government that with outside financial help can ease her internal woes and provide her ragged and unhappy people with food and work and homes.

NEW KENTON VETS PLAN PARK CAMPAIGN

KENTON, April 6—A park for Kenton and Hardin county came another step nearer realization today as it was announced that the local post of the Vareta, an organization of World War II veterans, would undertake the responsibility of raising the $25,000 needed to buy Spring Grove golf course and its accompanying 90 acres of land, one mile east of the city.

The first step was taken two weeks ago by several civic minded citizens who raised $3,000 to take an option on the grounds to prevent them from going to private ownership.

A fund raising committee headed by Dr. Walter Collins, superintendent of the Kenton school system, was appointed by Post Commander Burton Harrison. Named to assist Dr. Collins were Hugh Naylor and Oren Hogan.

Hunger in World Rated As Threat Equal To Hitler

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

There is a hidden threat in the world food shortage which is misleading a good many folk in the western hemisphere as they endeavor to estimate the dangers involved.

We know that thousands are dying in the Orient from hunger. This is concrete evidence and leaves no doubt about the gravity of the position in that part of the globe. But the fact that there hasn't been mass starvation in Europe yet is causing a tendency to give the impression that, after all, the situation there isn't desperate. Well we shouldn't let this fool us. Having just returned from several months' tour of Europe, there's no question in my mind about the threat of the all-but-empty grain bins in many areas. Director LaGuardia of the UNRRA says 200,000,000 people face starvation in Europe alone, and even if you could halve that figure it still would justify the editorial assertion of the London Daily Herald that "as a menace to civilization, hunger today is as potent as was Hitler yesterday."

DewittMackenzie

What we have to recognize is that starvation is cumulative. Folks don't die of hunger in a day. My old friend Mahatma Gandhi has staged many hunger-strikes one of which ran three weeks and he still is doing business at the old stand. And the process of starvation is much slower if even a small amount of nourishment is available.

That's what is happening in some parts of Europe.

Actually of course, there have been innumerable deaths already due directly or indirectly to malnutrition. And Mr. LaGuardia tells us that "unless we can ship large supplies of wheat for delivery this month in Europe, there will be mass starvation deaths in Poland, Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy." The position is bad, too, in Austria, Germany, France and Holland.

Austria has had a break of luck in the Soviet Union's withdrawal of most of its demands for land which the Austrians needed for food growing in the Russian occupied zone. The Muscovites had claimed some 125,000 acres and this has now been cut to 50,000.

Reverting to the Daily Herald's assertion that hunger is as potent a menace to civilization as was Hitler it requires little imagination to recognize the truth of this statement. If Europe arrived at mass starvation, we should see a loosing of passions which would know no limits.

VETS' JOB TRAINING PLANS DISCUSSED

Employment Office Directors of 13 Cities Meet Here.

A stepped-up job development program, including on-the-job training for veterans, was stressed at a meeting of 25 branch managers of the U. S. employment service from 13 Ohio cities, at Hotel Harding yesterday.

The conference, first of a projected monthly series, was led by Earl Smith of Columbus, area supervisor. Principal speaker was John L. Craig, state director of USES. Also present were William J. Muldoon, assistant state director, and Ralph E. Gable, state chief of procedure and methods. Gable was formerly supervisor of this area.

Need for close contact with industrial and labor organizations, civic groups and employers in general was emphasized. The branch managers were also directed to stress veterans' on-the-job training. Under this program, the federal government provides subsistence and other grants to veterans who are learning trades. Thirty-one veterans, from plumbers to bank clerks, have been placed in on-the-job training in Marion, according to local USES officials.

The USES six-point program was reviewed. It includes placement, industrial service, labor market information, employment counseling, veterans' service, and community service.

COVER RURAL AREAS IN CANCER DRIVE

Entire County Joins in Nation-wide Campaign.

Junior Chamber of Commerce opened its cancer campaign in outlying districts of Marion county today, placing coin boxes, posters and literature in all towns and villages outside Marion.

Efforts were being made to contact rural organizations and clubs in stressing the need for raising $25,000 as Marion county's part in a nationwide campaign against cancer.

In a letter to Don H. Ebright, Ohio state treasurer and state chairman of the drive, Eric A. Johnston, national chairman, pointed out that $12,000,000 will be needed this year to make an all-out attack against cancer. Mr. Johnston said the disease was taking the lives of one out of every seven persons, including about 25,000 children annually.

In outlining the purpose of the campaign for local solicitors, the national chairman stressed the following topics: detection clinics where anyone can go to make sure they are free of cancer, modern X-ray equipment, more hospital provisions for cancer patients, education of public as to cancers danger signals and early diagnosis, treatment and visiting nurses' medical service for patients in the home.

"When Was I Born?" Is $64 Question in China These Days

By The United Press

SHANGHAI—Chinese residents in Shanghai are today asking themselves: "When was I born?"

Of course, they remember their birthdays and expect their relatives and friends to say the Chinese equivalent of "happy birthday to you." But what most of them remember are the dates according to the old lunar calendar.

The new census forms require the residents to give all data in solar calendar. What's more, the old Chinese system of reckoning the age has also been outlawed. One must fill in what is known as the "actual age" or the "legal age." This generally made every Chinese one year or more younger than his "Chinese age," which starts from his prenatal year.

The census which the City government of Shanghai is taking does not only cover data for vital statistics but also for the "pao cha" system, organizing the city's populace into neighborhood associations—a method similar to the Japanese system enforced in their occupied areas before the end of the war. In fact, the Japanese system was borrowed from China.

Under the system, the city is divided into many "chu's," which are subdivided into "pao's" which are in turn divided into "cha's" each controlling a number of families. Chinese authorities claimed that the system materially helps the administration of cities of all sizes, but other political factions declared that it infringes on personal liberty.

The taking of the new census is undoubtedly proving to be a task to Chinese of the older generations who were born before such a thing as the solar calendar was ever known in China and is still considered as outlandish. To convert their lunar calendar birthday into the solar calendar equivalent involves reference to some obscure Chinese encyclopedias which are available only in a few public or private libraries.

It is also a shock to many women of the older generations as the new census forms demanded that they give their maiden names—which, according to an age-old custom in China, are always even more closely guarded than military secrets. Many of the older women could not even see any justification for revealing their names to their children, not speaking of the census-takers.

SATURDAY, APRIL 6, 1946

Army Day

ON THE first post-war Army Day, the United States has disorganized what military historians will call one of the most powerful fighting forces ever created.

It has been unable to decide on a policy to salvage enough of its wartime strength to meet the demands of ordinary prudence in a still unsettled world.

There is a continued systematic effort afoot at home, disguised as a crusade for the liberation of the G. I. from the "officer caste," to undermine discipline in the least-disciplined army in existence.

Millions of young men lately returned from service in the army range from 100 per cent critical to 10 per cent enthusiastic about their experiences. At the top of the armed forces, generals and admirals are unable to agree on the proper composition of the means of national security. Meanwhile, the first breath-taking disclosures of waste and graft in the late war are beginning to come to light. The army, in other words, has been reduced to its peacetime status, which is that of a necessary evil wide open to criticism from all sides, always eligible for cutting to the bone in economy drives, last government function to get a decent break from politicians—and, of course, the thing everybody depends on when danger threatens. This Army Day is going to be more typical than it is comfortable to admit.

Challenge to Cancer

THE GREATEST single step yet taken in the fight to widen humanity's margin of security against cancer is the American Cancer Society's campaign to raise $12,000,000.

Like the previously organized efforts to reduce the hazards of tuberculosis and polio, the cancer campaign is an appeal for self-protection. Even less than the other scourges of human health, cancer is no respecter of persons. Neither money nor influence can furnish immunity.

Perhaps nothing ever will furnish immunity, but cooperative effort over a period of years could produce a kind of cooperative security that is not yet available to the ordinary run of cancer victims. That is the American Cancer Society's purpose.

The amount to be raised this month is not great. Compared with the vast sums spent on war, which actually is less dangerous than cancer, $12,000,000 is a trifling down payment on the security a cooperative program to fight cancer can provide.

What Next, Little Men?

ONE of the curious byproducts of the United Automobile Workers convention is the public's realization that the General Motors strike was used to help the candidacy of one of the union's officials for the presidency, against the counsel of other officials and contrary to the advice of the head of the CIO. Another is the revelation that the union's demand for a look at the corporation's books never was intended to be anything more than a talking point—a way to put General Motors "over a barrel." One of the things the union claimed was that the books would prove what the department of commerce had asserted, that wage rates could be increased as much as 24 per cent without any increase in prices. This assertion recently was called back by Secretary of Commerce Wallace, who explained that it shouldn't have been taken seriously, because an obscure economist had made it, so sorry and excuse it please.

What do you suppose the little men will think up next to stir up the animals and keep everybody too excited to wonder why it seems necessary to stir up the animals in the first place?

Hitlers Are Born, Not Made

THE THEME that hunger makes Hitlers, a favorite with European famine relief publicists, is first-rate emotional propaganda—but ridiculous. Every American soldier who entered Germany during and after the climax of the war realized that the natives were the best-fed people he had seen.

In contradiction of Nazi lies about Germany's desperate need for food, Germans were well-fed before the beginning of the war. During the war itself, they deliberately starved captive populations and appropriated food for themselves.

It was German youth fattened in Norway who returned to that neutral country to seize it in the name of their paranoiac fuehrer. It was Fritz Kuhn, pot-bellied bundist, who led the Nazi movement in the United States. When did Hermann Goering ever do any starving?

Hunger does not make Hitlers. The type is variously born or developed by diseased thinking. The thing that makes Hitlers is the ability to enter into conspiracy to starve others, which was the dominant characteristic of Germany in its Hitlerian era.

Reece a Natural Choice

By RAYMOND MOLEY

He Comes Nearest To Representing All Republicans.

THE election of B. Carroll Reece as chairman of the Republican National Committee suggests no mystery or plot by a mythical "Old Guard." He was elected because, among the available candidates, he came nearest to representing organization Republicans. Will Hays, a one-time successful chairman, told Wendell Willkie, when as candidate for president in 1940 he was looking for a party post, what the essentials of the job should be. "He must," said Mr. Hays, "be a man to whom all the million or more local political leaders can look to and understand. They must look up through the long hierarchy of the party and see at the top their kind of man, who speaks their language and sympathizes with their problems."

This was sound and experienced advice. Innovation, reform and inter-party criticism can be left to candidates. But the chairman must be neutral and regular.

Those who say that the Democratic party, under Mr. Roosevelt, followed a different policy miss the whole point. Mr. Roosevelt himself was an innovator, a creator of issues. But his various chairmen were regulars. Farley, Flynn, Walker and Hannegan were men chosen to fulfill the Hays specifications stated above. They were picked by Mr. Roosevelt, but they were men who might well have been elected in any event.

Reformers and brains trusters in the early days of the New Deal deliberately refrained from interfering with party machinery. In later days, when personal advisers of the President, like Tommy Corcoran or Harry Hopkins, tampered with party matters, they were told to keep hands off. In fact, a condition imposed by one of the party chairmen, when he took over, was that the President keep his personal entourage out of campaigns.

The election of Mr. Reece followed the rule of inevitability in politics. Former Senator Danaher is an able man and a politician, but he was from the east and he was suspected of being too close to Governor Dewey and to Mr. Willkie's group. John Haynes is a converted Democrat, and that doesn't go with regular Republicans. Parties do not readily absorb refugees from other parties. That left Mr. Reece as the most available candidate, and the regulars of the committee elected him.

Mr. Reece has been close, geographically and ideologically, to such Ohio stalwarts as Senator Taft and former Governor Bricker. The middle-west will recognize him as a man of their liking. He can keep track of the skeleton party in the south. He is nearer the west and far west than his opponents were.

Harold Stassen's reservations about the Reece record in congress will not be serious. Mr. Stassen must, if he has ambitions, keep a fairly good relationship with the national committee. He cannot fight it, if he is to be assured of plenty of delegates in 1948. He will go along. The Reece non-interventionist record in congress will not matter much. The chairman's job is to set up the machinery to elect any candidate. He has no duties connected with electing a candidate and few in determining policies. Any leaning by him toward one or another of the aspirants would hurt the aspirant and Mr. Reece as well.

The Reece job is to build a harmonious and efficient party organization on the good foundations laid by Herbert Brownell. The country needs a strong Republican party, and the new chairman has the capacity to lead it in the two and a half years ahead.

Just a Minute

—By Jack Tarver—

AND ALL THEY WANT IS A TWO-PANTS SUIT

The Custom Tailors Guild of America has announced its nominations for the country's ten best-dressed men.

The finding of so impressive a number who can be listed in this connection is a triumph for the tailors. The clothing shortage being what it is, one would have thought they'd have had to compromise on seven.

One of the ten is Ray Milland, who won an Academy Award for his talented elbow-bending in the picture Lost Weekend. This comes as a surprise to movie-goers. They assumed his wardrobe consisted of a rosy-glow and a strait-jacket.

It is noteworthy also that among the ten were Edward Stettinius and Perry Como. But Harry and Frankie can console themselves with the thought that at least bow-ties are sanitary.

Incidentally, the Guild doesn't consider a man well-dressed unless his wardrobe contains six suits, six hats, 12 pair of shoes, two topcoats, two overcoats, three sport jackets, six pair of slacks, and two tuxedos.

So that's what's happened to the clothing—the ten best dressed men have it all.

A fine thing too, when millions are offered a choice of terms: the Army for a uniform, or jail for indecent exposure.

Finland's Burden of Defeat

Country Begins To Show Signs of Recovery.

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT

HELSINKI—Finland today looks better than it did a year ago when the armistice with Russia was only a few months old. Shop windows then boarded up now gleam with glass. Empty shelves are not so numerous in the capital's biggest department store, Stockmann's, though the merchandise is largely wooden products.

Travelers from Stockholm still must cross the icy Gulf of Bothnia to Turku by boat because the Russian control commission will not allow airline traffic between the Swedish and Finnish capitals.

But Turku-to-Helsinki trains run on schedule and traveling time has been cut from eight to six hours since I last made the trip in March, 1945. Only one train goes each way daily, but it has a diner, a luxury in Finland.

Only people of means can afford travel, and their attitude toward Russia is unchanged—distaste and fear. But they are also stubborn. They still feel they can have their comfortable capitalism again.

A Finnish inventor was returning from a business trip to Sweden. He had invented a seamless paper box that could be molded into most any shape. He preferred to produce it outside his native land rather than where its advantages might benefit the Soviet Union.

Today's traveler in Finland senses an atmosphere of industry. There is almost no involuntary unemployment.

Politically the nation is guided by aging President Juho K. Paasikivi, wartime advocate of peace with Russia, who says, "We must keep the confidence of our great neighbor to the east." Though a product of conservatism and former bank president, he accepts the idea that Finland is a small nation in the Russian sphere of influence.

This will be Finland's most difficult year with respect to reparations. In eight years she must pay the Soviet $300,000,000 in goods. In addition she must restore in 1946 restitution deliveries all goods Finnish troops took from Russian areas they occupied in the war. This means Finland must deliver goods valued at over $50,000,000 this year—and so far she is up to schedule.

Inflation threatens because of short rations, which have led all but the poorest Finns to the black market, but the potato crop has been good and there is enough to eat.

The American government's $35,000,000 loan to Finland will be used for domestic needs only, and the American Red Cross is delivering almost $3,000,000 worth of clothes and medical supplies.

Did You Know?

The Colosseum in Rome was begun by Vespasian and finished by Titus (80 AD). It occupies the site of an artificial lake in Nero's gardens and was the largest theater in the known world in antiquity, with room for 50,000 spectators.

Qum, a province in Persia, is a stronghold of the Shiah faith and has many tombs of saints and pious persons, including the shrine of Fatima.

The Empress Catherine received a Russian peasant woman in 1757 who had 57 children, all living—four sets of quadruplets, seven sets of triplets, 10 twins.

So They Say—

Karl Renner, President of Austria—"I assume that the occupying powers will not make difficulties for our press when things are discussed openly on which it is now silent. Through the lack of clarity of the Potsdam decisions, our national wealth and resources appear to be seriously threatened. Austria must have, however, in order to live, an industrial potential that will enable her to overcome her shortage of foodstuffs and certain vital raw materials."

Jose Giral, Premier of the exiled Spanish Republican government in Paris—"If the great powers break off relation with the Franco government, France will not be able to maintain his regime. Our government is ready to take over the power in Spain as soon as Franco gets out. It can be done without a revolution, because we have a large and effective organization inside Spain."

Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, formerly special counsel to the late President Roosevelt—"The saying that civilization was a race between education and catastrophe is no longer a brilliant figure of speech, a piece of rethoric. Today, it is cold hard fact. The race is on in earnest. In that race I am afraid that atomic power has already given catastrophe a powerful lead. Education must catch up fast."

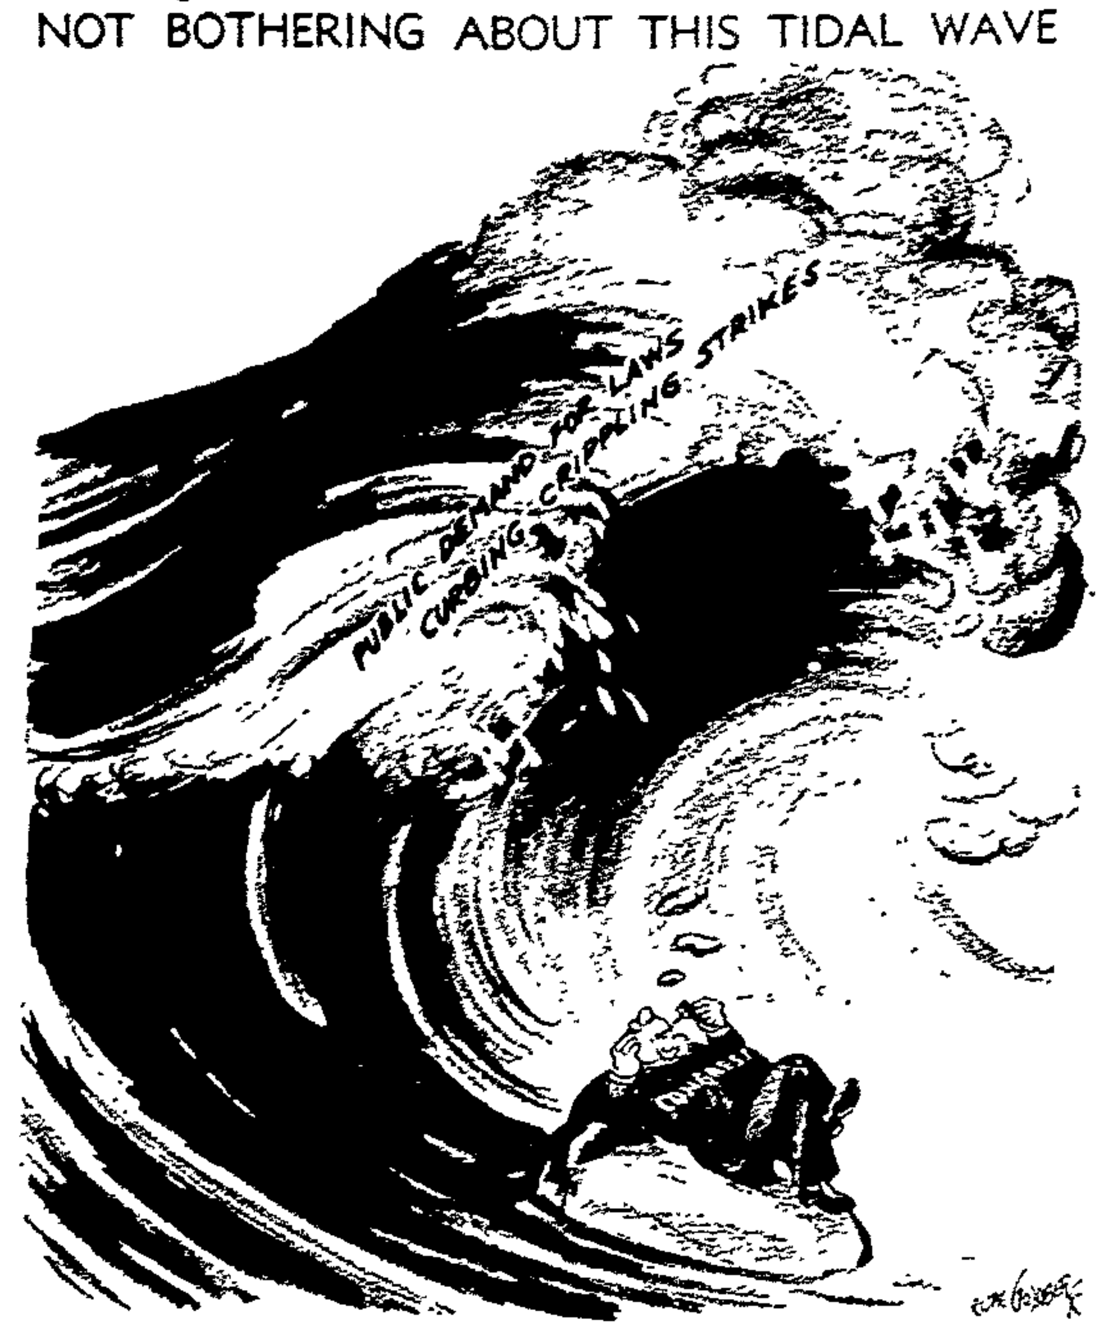

Prof. M. L. E. Oliphant, a leading British expert on atomic energy—"The death of every scientist in the United States would not stop the manufacture of atomic bombs, because it is out of the hands of scientists now, and in the hands of the fire-eaters."

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis—"Not the atomic bomb but war needs to be outlawed. Through this weapon and others our nation has been given the power to prevent further outbreak of war. Until international police can be established to whom control of war weapons can be transferred, only we are able to protect the rights of free men throughout the world."

Vera Micheles Dean, research director of the Foreign Policy Association—"If, today, we were sure that Russia had the atomic-bomb secret and we did not, would it not be the bounden duty of our government to find out what it could? Russia is only doing what every one predicted would happen when we announced that we would not share the secret."

Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, in a sermon at Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, N. Y.—"A day in which no speech would be made, no radio pograms offered, no newspapers published, a day in which all conversation would be at a minimum, would be the best thing that could happen to us. Unless we shut up we are likely to crack-up."

NOT BOTHERING ABOUT THIS TIDAL WAVE

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, April 6, 1936.

Tornadoes whipped across the south from Arkansas to South Carolina leaving more than 150 dead, 1,000 injured and property damage estimated in millions. Rains ranging from 1.36 to 2.76 from Wheeling, W. Va., to Louisville, Ky., caused the Ohio river to rise rapidly toward a predicted return to flood stage or higher.

Purchase of the Waldorf pharmacy was announced by Virgil L. Flocken who bought the business from Mrs. William G. Windhurst.

Eight members of the Marion Altrusa club motored to Findlay where they were guests of the Findlay club at dinner and a program in the Elks' club. Attending were Mrs. Victor E. Dombaugh, Mrs. T. S. Cathers, Misses Edith Eibling, Christine Rieck, Ruth Kleinmaier, Mary Margaret O'Donnell, Jessie Lindsey and Ruth Kramer.

Twenty-five couples attended the dance given by the Jolly Dance club in the Elks' hall. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greenland and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Frye.

Miss Stella Sweeney of East Center street left for Cleveland where she was to visit Miss Frances Collins, a teacher in the Cleveland public schools.

Funeral services for William Smith, 73, "dean of Guernsey county printers," was held at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. G. A. Russell in Mt. Gilead. His death occurred the preceding Saturday at his home in Cambridge.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, April 6, 1926.

It was announced that members of the board of education and Superintendent of Schools Jesse H. Mason had reached an agreement on a contract which would retain Mr. Mason as head of the schools here for five more years.

Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, died on the scaffold of the state prison, Wethersfield, Conn., for the murder of Policeman James Skelly.

Members of the Business Women's club held their anniversary dinner at Hotel Harding with 78 present. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. E. J. Salter, assisted by members of the executive board.

Mrs. Wilbur Symes was elected president of the Burroughs Nature club at a meeting held at the home of Miss Grace Wingett on North Greenwood street.

Now It Comes Out

By Jack Stinnett

WASHINGTON—We probably never will get around to all of the "now-it-can-be-told" stories of the war. Never in any similar period of the world's history have inventive genius and industrial expansion combined to flood the land with new gadgets, gimmicks, and machines.

After the release of reports on atomic energy, rockets, jet propulsion, radar and electronics, the punch is gone out of most of the stories.

The Army's Chemical Warfare Service probably will never get out now the full story of its use of smoke in the war.

When we went into this war, the Army didn't have one single smoke generator, yet when the Anzio beachhead was established the landing forces operated behind a smokescreen 15 miles long and capable of being maintained 14 hours a day.

Along the Moselle, Saar and Rhine whole armies were moving up behind smoke at the war's end.

Perhaps before long similar generators will be protecting millions of acres of fruits and vegetables from the unseasonable frosts.

Another process that came out of the war was the cheap extraction of helium. Once helium cost around $2,000 a cubic foot. Now it costs one cent a cubic foot and there are new plants in Kansas, Texas and New Mexico.

Among the many new uses lately turned up for helium is its use in oversize tires.

Incidentally, if you have seen anything of a new "ingenious German machine which may revolutionize the manufacture of condensers for radio, radar and other electronic equipment," notify the Army or the Department of Commerce. They've lost it.

Commerce recently announced that this new machine, which turned up in Stuttgart, Germany, was "enroute" and soon would be demonstrated publicly by Commerce and the Army Signal Corps. Army called Commerce and said the new machine already was "somewhere in this country but could Commerce tell them where it was?" Commerce couldn't.

Until it turns up, American condenser manufacturers will have to struggle along without the new machine, which Commerce says will cut production costs up to 20 percent.

Chemical warfare says they already are making thousands of gallons of soap with napalm, one of the fillers used in the fire bombs that rained on Japanese cities. So far, it has been used only in mess-hall dishpans and on barrack-room floors and isn't on the market commercially yet.

Famous Name

BALTIMORE, Md.—When they say "Mendelssohn" in this city they are more apt to be referring to a living musician than to the famous composer of another era.

Felix Robert Mendelssohn, a grand nephew of the famous composer, is a principal 'cellist in the Baltimore Symphony orchestra and he prepared recently to give his first Baltimore recital. The musician, who is also a composer, was forced by Hitler to leave Germany.

Nylon Casualty

NEW YORK, N. Y.—A New York patrolman learned about the current nylon shortage and woman's vanity the hard way recently.

Assigned to keep the situation orderly as 6,000 women staged a rush for 6,000 pairs of nylons at Gimbels, Patrolman John Lyon wound up in the store's first aid station. He was cut on the left foot by a heavy piece of glass as the surging crowd pushed him aside and broke a door panel.

Plan Astral Map

Construction of a photographic map of the firmament in only five years will be possible with new equipment being installed in the Hale Observatory on Mt. Palomar, Cal., according to recent reports. A newly developed device on the telescope, still awaiting final installation, will shorten this work from what was once estimated would require centuries.

Air Jobs for Women

CHATANOOGA—New opportunities in the air for women had been outlined here as the American Air Lines System indicates that it will employ 500 stewardesses within the next six months. William Baker, southern regional manager, said applicants must be between 21 and 27 and unmarried. They will serve on both domestic and overseas lines.

Take me out to the ball game—
Take me out there in class!
Make it classy and extra gay—
Let me root from a cabaret;
Take me out to the ball game—
Get a "table up front"
For it's one, two, three drinks and out
At the old ball game!

II

Take me out to the ball park
Make my visit de luxe!
Nix on peanuts and crackerjack—
I want wine and each new smart crack,
Put me there with the smart set,
Let me cheer 'em with swank—
For it's one, two, three toasts and out
At the old ball park.

III

Take me out to the ball game,
Let me have a club badge!
Put me there by a mirrored wall—
Let me drink to the cry "Play ball!"
I crave chromium fixtures—
I love red leather chairs—
Oh it's one, two, three songs and out
At the old ball game!

IV

Take me out to the ball park—
Make my visit correct.
I don't care who is at the bat—
I want gossip and night-club chat
Keep our table exclusive—
Keep the peasants at bay—
Make it strictly R.S.V.P.
At the old ball game!

THAT'S SHOW BUSINESS

Dick Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein with "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel" of their own running on Broadway, and with a couple of other plays as well, are now on the road with a musical by "the competition": Music and lyrics by Irving Berlin, book by Herbert and Dorothy Fields. How times change! For a musical comedy book and song team to do any producing would have been sensational a few years back. And for one to produce the work of other book and song teams was stuff out of the dream world.

Medals To Prove It

By Truman Twill

WHEN someone gets a solid idea, it deserves our solid support.

The following idea was laid at our feet the other day by a demobilized member of Uncle Sam's formerly formidable civilian army. The patriot went into action as a buck private. He came out, years later, wiser in the ways of the enlisted man. In an approximation of his words, this is the idea:

Uncle Sugar figured out how to decorate darned near everybody in the war, especially officers. When he started handing out medals to master-minds who never left the states, generals who fought the war behind armored desks a couple thousand miles behind the lines, that's when he got the big idea.

The hope of medals and decorations furnished incentive, see. For being a good boy and giving the right answers, Uncle Sugar had a little something for you. It would look pretty pinned on, it would show up nice in the obituary when the old soldier passed on, and it meant extra moola if he stayed in service. See? So why not borrow the idea for civilians?

Take the faithful employe, for example. Everybody takes him. He gives the job his best, day in and day out, but what does he get that all the other employes don't get too? Maybe a pat in the head. Good dog stuff. The idea is to set up a system of standardized awards for civilians, with appropriate decorations.

For instance, a fellow who has managed to get to work on time for 25 years gets a bronze time clock with overtime clusters. A little gadget on the lapel tells the world that here is Mr. Punctuality in person and not a moving picture. Or the faithful fellow who never has asked the boss for a raise but always waited for recognition—he gets the plastic R for Reticence. Then you can spot him in a crowd. "There goes a man who is not a pusher," you say to yourself.

There would be badges for fellows who don't go to the drinking fountain and the water cooler every whipstitch—performance beyond the line of duty. There would be a little something for the unsung heroes who gave their work the old college try—perhaps a silver figure of an eager beaver. These awards would mount up. They would be worth extra lettuce on pay days. Morale would improve.

The idea isn't to run down the military system of giving recognition where someone thinks it's due. Fighting men who earned their decorations are welcome to them—and more. Even the ones who got decorated for heroic performance of duty with paper clips are welcome to it. This is only a suggestion that private employers might borrow the idea and give a fellow a chance to belong to the Order of Eager Beavers for performance beyond the line of duty. See?

Sanctification Necessary

A Sermonette

By REV. DENNIS MARTHERLEE
Pastor of First Wesleyan Methodist Church.

FOR a Scripture text for this subject I call your attention to 1st Thes. 4:4: "For this is the will of God even your Sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication."

First, let us notice what Sanctification is not.

It is not a state in which we do not sympathize with the sorrows of others.

It is not a state of exemption from mental or physical suffering.

It is not a state of exemption from the Christian warfare, but this warfare is not with carnal weapons.

It is not a state of inglorious ease from labor and Christian duty.

Second, let us notice what Sanctification is. It is a second definite work of grace whereby all carnal nature is eradicated from the heart and the heart is filled with divine love; a state of settled and complete satisfaction in God, He being "all and in all"; a state of rest from the former servitude of inbred sin; a state of rest in which the tumult of the heart has been destroyed and the soul has peace, with itself, inward rest from the carnal nature that had wanted to have dominion.

This experience is instantaneously wrought, not by growth but a definite death to the body of sin, or carnality, as weeds do not grow out of the garden, or a serpent grow out of his poison, but must be destroyed. Even so must the crooked, corrupt, warped nature of inbred sin be eradicated. ROM. 6:6. Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him that the body of sin might be destroyed that henceforth we should not serve sin.

The evidence of a sanctified heart: Jesus said, by their fruits ye shall know them. Matt. 7:20. The streams partake of the nature of the fountain. The heart gives character to the life by a law of necessity. It breathes itself through all our activities and a pure heart will be indicated.

By pure and holy conversation: Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. If the heart is pure, the conversation will be sweet, truthful, humble, heavenly and holy. There will not be any loose, foolish, unclean, conversation.

By opposition to all impurity: A pure heart loathes sin and has no affinity for it. It shrinks from it as a worm would from the fire. If you enjoy looking at obscene pictures, hearing unclean conversation, and indorsing unclean, impure acts you are possessed by a corrupted disease of sin that will cost you the loss of your soul unless you repent and have your heart made pure by the baptism of the Holy Ghost and Fire.

By reluctance to mingle with the gay, the vain, and the worldly: We are in the world but not of the world. We will warn, pray, and love the soul of the worldly, but the pure in heart has no moral affinity for such society and no taste for the things practiced by them. The pure in heart has tastes, motives, communings, and enjoyments totally dissimilar to the worldling, for the charm of the world has been broken. The pomp, pride, riches and pleasure of this world are but beggarly elements in comparison to the love, joy and peace that fill every Sanctified heart. When filled with the Spirit, we can say with the poet,

"Now rest my long divided heart,
Fixed on this blissful center rest;
Nor ever from thy Lord depart
With Him of every good possessed."

Pupils Hear Safety Talks

Talks on accident prevention on highways and particularly at grade crossings were given by D. E. Mumford, of New York City, assistant safety agent of the New York Central Railroad, in talks given at the public and parochial schools here Thursday and Friday. The visit here was a part of the program launched by the railroad company to prevent or reduce accidents in which the railroads and the general public are mutually concerned.

Mr. Mumford and his party, W. G. Voelker, trainmaster and Sgt. R. W. Smith, of the New York Central police force, both of Galion, were joined here by Frank C. Robinson, local agent for the company, for the two-day tour of the schools. Talks were given in assemblies at Harding High, Vernon, Edison and Central Junior High schools on Thursday, and at St. Mary Parochial school, Silver street, Glenwood and Oakland schools yesterday. Mr. Mumford will return to Marion April 23, when he will be a guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club, and will conclude the safety talks in the remaining schools in the city.

Covers N. Y. C. System

Mr. Mumford is one of a group of speakers presenting "safety" talks in towns and cities over the entire New York Central railroad system. In the last two months he has spoken in more than 500 schools and contacted more than 300,000 pupils.

Pointing out that substantial progress has been made in reducing crossing accidents during the last 20 years, greater progress can yet be made, he stated. Seventy-two per cent of these accidents occur at crossings where motor drivers have a clear and unobstructed view of the approaching train, and a substantial majority occur at crossings which not only have the standard warning sign advising the user of the highway he is approaching a railroad crossing, but they also have some type of protection such as watchmen, gates, visual or audible signals, the students were told. He emphasized the fact that one third of the accidents result from the motorists driving his car into the side of the train all the way from the locomotive back to the rear end.

Cites a Remedy

In citing a remedy Mr. Mumford said it lies in education and law enforcement. Five per cent of the motor drivers are careless or reckless, declared. He told the pupils that accidents could be almost entirely eliminated if drivers would follow these four simple rules: Approach all rail-highway crossings with your vehicle under control, prepared to stop if necessary. Look and listen. If the view is obscured, use extra precautionary measures. Know the way is clear before attempting to pass over the crossing. Obey the traffic rules and caution others to do so. Support public enforcement agencies in their campaign for safe driving on the highway and at grade crossings.

negotiate an oil concession so long as Russian troops were in the country, yet announced yesterday an agreement on making future concessions. Even while their case was before the council "they were all the time negotiating," he said.

The council, whose last previous session was held Thursday, when it accepted a Russian assurance of troop withdrawals from Iran, was in week-end recess today and will not meet again until Tuesday.

Egyptian Delegate Mahmoud Hassan Pasha ended speculation about reports that he would make an early appeal against the presence of British troops in Egypt by saying he hoped the success of current British-Egyptian negotiations would make such action unnecessary.

The negotiations are under way in Cairo and London.

BRITISH PW'S JOLT HITLER

Failure To Draw Them Into Quisling Army Called His "Biggest Flop."

By CHARLES WIGHTON
United Press Correspondent

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, Germany—Hitler's biggest flop was the attempt to form a British Quisling army from prisoners of war and pro-Nazis.

The notorious British Free Corps never had an operational strength of more than eight men. Only 50 had any association with the corps at any time.

Details of the failure are included in official British intelligence reports. According to the Germans one of the principal reasons for their failure was the natural caution and suspicion of the British.

For Russian Front Only

The original organization was called St. George's Legion. It was started in 1943 and John Amery, who was executed as a traitor last year, toured POW camps and civilian internment camps in Germany and France trying to recruit Britons to join the legion. He said the legion would fight Bolshevism and would never be used in the west.

Amery claimed that five colonels and a brigadier already had joined the unit which was at brigade strength, that the unit had the support of the British government and that joining would lead to promotion. Prisoners were offered the inducement of better conditions.

By the end of 1943 the name was changed to British Free Corps which was hoped would have a greater appeal to Irish and colonial prisoners.

The uniform was ordinary German field gray with the Union Jack embroidered on the left arm. The hopeful Nazis had 800 of the badges manufactured. Later three leopards were added to the collar and the words "British Free Corps" in Gothic lettering.

Under Foreign Office

Military training consisted of only a little drill and a daily parade. The members were not under Wehrmacht control but under the German foreign office. They traveled throughout Germany with complete freedom on recruiting drives.

In 1945 when the German position became desperate a frantic effort was made to raise the strength to 60—the smallest unit which could be used in the front line. The drive failed.

Recruits were chiefly those who had Nazi sympathies or at least hated the Russians. Others were tricked by false accounts of the BFC purpose and alleged British backing. Some left the organization when they found they had been tricked. Probably because a man's return to POW camp would prejudice further recruiting all such cases were sent to a farm.

Frank Tilley of Burlington, Vt., who once told the Army that he was her father, and therefore she cannot be brought to the U. S. Army authorities said that James Logan, the baby's father and Tilley's brother-in-law, would not authorize adoption of Kathleen. Tilley, who once took the child to Paris after he spent a furlough with his wife in England, says he loves the child and "If I fail this time I will go on trying to have her with me and my wife in our new home in the U. ARMY ORDER DOOMS OLD-TIME BARRACKS

By International News Service

VANCOUVER, Wash.—Century-old Vancouver Barracks, which fought the Indians in 1849, and once quartered Generals Grant, Sheridan and Marshall, appears doomed by an army "excess" order.

On May 13, 1849, the steamer Massachusetts with the first artillery companies L and M from New York reached the Hudson Bay trading post at Fort Vancouver, and the next day the American flag was raised for the first time north of the Columbia river.

A two story log building built the same year, the first headquarters, still stands and is used as bachelor officers' quarters. It is erroneously believed that "General Ulysses S. Grant slept here" but actually he occupied another building shipped in knocked-down form around Cape Horn and long since vanished.

Gen. George C. Marshall was assigned to Vancouver Barracks in 1934 before he became chief of staff. A parade of other famous men has been there.

In earliest days, troops at the barracks fought rebellious Indians of the Northwest, but the post itself was never attacked.

The barracks was last used to handle troops going through the Portland port of embarkation in this war.

Now the war department says historic Vancouver barracks at old Fort Vancouver is through unless some branch of the army requests it for specific use.

★Harry L. Tidd who passed away one year ago today, April 6, 1945.
In the cemetery, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
But whom we could not save.
You gave no one a last farewell.
You said goodbye to none,
A weary heart had ceased to beat,
Before we knew you had gone.
And when the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing,
If you could only come home.
You shall never be forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
